

Loy Blake Park ORIENTEERING COURSE

Purpose Statement

This orienteering course was created as part of Carter Allen's Eagle Scout Project, Troop 1896, and was developed in connection with his older brother Parker Allen's Eagle Scout Project from Troop 153, which involved planting trees in this same park. Together, these projects were designed to enhance the park experience by encouraging visitors to enjoy the outdoors, appreciate nature, and learn new skills.

The orienteering course provides three different levels of challenge, allowing participants of all ages and abilities to develop confidence in navigation, problem-solving, and outdoor adventure. By combining skill-building with time spent in nature, the course aims to inspire individuals and families to explore, learn, and grow together in the beauty of the outdoors.

Please take the time to get outside, challenge yourself, and enjoy all that nature has to offer nature, the course aims to inspire individuals and families to explore, learn, and grow together in the beauty of the outdoors.

"You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself any direction you choose."
